Legislative Update for the week ending 10/13/2017

Overview

The Legislature met this week to hold committee meetings and we have passed the ninety day mark, less than three months before the regular legislative session begins. With the 90 day mark passing almost 425 bills had been filed for the 2018 session, this is four times as many bills as last year. A chart showing the number of bills filed showed an interesting trend by year. The session immediately preceding an election cycle typically has far more bills filed than on a non-election year.

Keep an eye on HB 6001, a bill that would eliminate red light cameras. This bill comes up annually and thus far has not passed. This year, the house version was assigned to one committee. A sure sign that leadership wants it to pass. On Tuesday the bill passed out of committee with a favorable vote and will now be heard on the House floor for a full vote. This bill is moving fast, let's see how it fairs in the Senate.

The state budget is going to be slim this year according to the Revenue Estimating Conference, there is an expected $75 Million surplus (out of a $82 Billion budget, or less than 1%). Cutting into that surplus will be expenses from Hurricane Irma and that estimate was before Hurricane Irma basically shut down parts of the state which would be expected to have a negative impact on revenues produced to the state. Future budget years are projected to be even more bleak. A $1 Billion shortfall is forecast for the next two fiscal years. Speaker Corcoran has stated that one of his spending priorities is Hurricane Irma recovery. Presumably this will cut into spending in other areas. Insurance claims related to Hurricane Irma have totaled nearly $4.6 Trillion, this is quite telling in terms of the impact Irma had on Florida. On the topic of spending priorities Senate President Negrón has stated one of his funding priorities is funding the Bright Futures scholarship. He wants to make sure it is funded going into future years.

The Governor has asked Florida DOT to look at Interstate 75 and how the facility can be used most efficiently to evacuate persons when a hurricane is coming. He specifically asked that the section from Wildwood to the Georgia-Florida line be reviewed. This 144 mile section took hours to traverse during Irma evacuations, normally it should take about two hours. No worries though, the department is certainly up to the task.

The Florida focus on the damages Hurricane Irma brought on Puerto Rico remains a hot topic. Many residents of Florida can trace their history, or their family history, to Puerto Rico. With the amount of severe damage in Puerto Rico, Florida may see even more new residents who migrated from Puerto Rico. Many members of the legislature will look at ways Florida may assist Puerto Rico and her people that chose to relocate to Florida. This is concerning for school systems that are unsure how to prepare given the uncertainty of how many new students may arrive. Nothing like this has happened before to give administrators a clue as to what to expect. Watch this topic as the session unfolds, it should generate a lot of discussion along with some legislation or spending priorities. A side note to the issue of damage from Hurricane Irma, I have heard that South Florida real estate prices are expected to feel some upward pressure as residents from the Caribbean whose homes were damaged (and are no longer habitable) will look for housing in South Florida and increase competition among buyers.

The House is looking at Visit Florida again this year, this year a close look at a vendor who received millions to produce TV shows that showcased Florida. The question is how the money was spent. There is also a question of a fishing boat that became the property of the show's producer after filming. Last year it became quickly apparent that Speaker Corcoran was not interested in funding Visit Florida at the levels Governor Scott requested. This is beginning to feel like Deja Vu.

Lastly, Jose Oliva from Miami Lakes was installed as the next Speaker of the House for the 2018-2020 Legislative sessions by his fellow Republicans who hold 78 of the 120 seats in the House. When Jose is not working to represent the citizens of House District 110, he is occupied by his role of Co-CEO of Oliva Cigar Co. He sold the company that bears his name in 2016, however he remains connected to the business.
